Dr. Singh held that Ambedkar's thought on public finance and agriculture has relevance and applicable in current scenario of Indian economy. Similarly, his views are of use for policy makers in the field of inflation, farmer conditions, labour force and unemployment. He however, held that Ambedkar's economic thoughts have not been researched much due to "shadowing effect". Dr. Naryan Bhosale in his lecture highlighted various aspects of discrimination, sufferings and exploitation of the nomadic communities of Maharashtra who have been reduced as poor landless, migrant labourers, beggars and homeless. In recounting their condition he gave example of the condition of nomadic tribe to which he belongs and cited available data and social indicators to support his narrative.
